'We want peace for Ukraine'

A candlelight vigil was held at the U of S on Thursday to honour students and other protesters who were killed during Ukraine's recent uprising. Organizers hope the event serves as support for Ukraine. For a photo gallery go to metronews.ca. For more on the Ukraine crisis, see page 5. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

Students, supporters gather at U of S for candlelight vigil

Ukrainian hymns were heard at the University of Saskatchewan on Thursday as approximately 100 people gathered in solidarity with Ukrainians during the country's political crisis.

Converging at a statue of Ukrainian writer Lesya Ukrainka for a candlelight vigil, participants tried to show support for protesters in the former Soviet republic.

"There is a real threat of war and we want peace for Ukraine," said organizer Viktoriya Kalchenko.

"This ceremony is a small gesture on our part in support of the people of Ukraine who both desire and deserve peace."

The organizers want Canada to impose sanctions on Russia, whose troops moved days ago into the Crimean Peninsula.

Also on Thursday, Prime Minister Stephen Harper called the Russian government's move an "illegal military occupation."

Some attending the U of S vigil, such as accounting student Valentyna Tetera, have family members who participated in Ukraine's uprising. She said the support of Canadians is important.

"That's how we can raise awareness about the situation in Ukraine," Tetera said.

Lara Zaluski, who has a connection to two people killed in the uprising, spoke at the event to dispel what she calls Russian "propaganda" labelling pro-Ukraine protesters as terrorists.

"A lot of these individuals are everyday, hard-working Ukrainians who had just finally had enough," she said.

"(These events) help to let them know that they are not alone in their struggles."

Ukraine has been in conflict since November, when residents took to the streets in the country's capital of Kyiv over a decision by since-ousted president Viktor Yanukovych to cool ties with the European Union.

Protests turned violent and focused on government corruption and human-rights violations, with clashes between police and demonstrators leaving at least 100 dead and thousands injured.

Friend raises funds for funeral

Homicide aftermath. Money intended to cover cost of service planned for Sunday

MORGAN MODJESKI
morgan.modjeski@metronews.ca

A lifelong friend of Dustin Boulet, a victim of a suspected homicide last weekend, wants to help the man's family mourn by raising funds for his funeral.

Family members say the 29-year-old Boulet was stabbed outside Bridges Ale House & Eatery on Saskatoon's west side last Saturday while trying to break up a fight.

"He was one of the happiest guys I've ever met in my life," Evan Lavallee, 28, said outside Saskatoon's provincial court building on Thursday before two men charged in the case appeared before a judge.

"I really feel like I lost a brother over the weekend."

Lavallee doesn't want Boulet's family struggling financially and is asking people in Saskatoon and across Saskatchewan to step up to help them.

"I've always thought that Saskatoon is a community that really looks out for each other and right now, one of our families is hurting," he said.

Donations to the Dustin Boulet Fund can be made at any Affinity Credit Union branch in Saskatchewan.

Wearing black T-shirts that read "Justice for Dustin," some of Boulet's relatives attended the suspects' court appearance. The victim's brother, Chad Boulet, 31, applauded the fundraising effort.

"I am so honoured, blessed to have such great people for Dustin," Chad said.

"He's up there smiling."

Nathan Joseph, 27, is charged with second-degree murder and two counts of aggravated assault. Estevan Fuenzalida, 24, is charged as an accessory.

Both are being kept in custody and are scheduled to be back in court later this month.

Evan Lavallee is seen with a poster for the Dustin Boulet Fund outside Saskatoon's provincial court building on Thursday. MORGAN MODJESKI/METRO

$1.1M jackpot won at casino in Prince Albert

A player has won more than $1.1 million on a slot machine at Prince Albert's Northern Lights Casino.

The Saskatchewan Indian Gaming Authority (SIGA) said the cash prize won in a Smoke Signals progressive slot jackpot on Thursday is one of the largest it has ever awarded.

The winner, whose name has not been made public, will claim a total of $1,159,434.80 at the casino on Friday.

Smoke Signals is SIGA's largest progressive jackpot. The game is featured at six SIGA casinos across the province.

The jackpot starts at $250,000 and grows as more people play. METRO

NDP tables bill of rights for seniors in long-term care

The Opposition NDP has introduced a private member's bill in the Saskatchewan legislature that the party says would establish minimum care standards for seniors homes.

NDP health critic Danielle Chartier says every resident in a care home deserves regular meals, regular baths and a minimum amount of one-on-one care.

Health Minister Dustin Duncan says he's looking at the bill, but adds that special-care homes already have guidelines.

He says there's more focus on the quality of care, rather than time of care for each resident.

The Law Reform Commission of Saskatchewan released a report last May that said steps should be taken to ensure civil rights are recognized in long-term care.

Its recommendations included a bill of rights for each long-term care home and legislation to set out a minimum standard that must be included.

Province spending $2M on methods of oil recovery

Saskatchewan is ponying up nearly $2 million to help find ways to push more oil out of the ground.

Innovation Saskatchewan, a government agency that gives the province advice on research and development, has approved $1.9 million to develop enhanced oil-recovery technologies in heavy oil fields.

The money is for four projects, including two for the Regina-based Petroleum Technology Research Centre.

One project involves developing technology to map the flow of oil in reservoirs, while the second aims to assess the potential of radio-frequency heating to increase oil production.

Another project will look at whether biosurfactant-producing microbes can enhance oil recovery in the Lloydminster area.

CBC and Metro partner to recognize young leaders

Future 40. The second annual event will celebrate 'smart, energetic and imaginative people under 40'

JACOB MORGAN
jacob.morgan@metronews.ca

CBC's Future 40 project is back for the second year and this time it's partnered with Metro to show off Saskatchewan's brightest young leaders on multiple platforms.

Nominations for the award are now open and will continue through March 14 until 40 people under the age of 40 are selected as the 2014 stars.

"Last year was really heartwarming," said John Agnew, managing director of CBC Saskatchewan. "It was quite a tour de force of talent and achievement."

Agnew added that the winners represent many walks of life from businesspeople and community activists to athletes and artists.

"It's from every sort of aspect of human endeavor," he said. "It's an opportunity to acknowledge that there are a whole lot of really smart, energetic and imaginative people under 40 out there."

With the province growing, said Agnew, the demographics are skewing younger. In 2013, CBC Saskatchewan received more than 300 entries.

Charlotte Empey, Metro Canada's editor in chief, said she's thrilled to take part in such an exciting initiative.

"When the media can come together and work co-operatively on projects like this, everybody wins," said Empey.

She added that it's important to appreciate those who are making a difference in their generation across all sectors of the professional world.

"From my perspective the goal would be to recognize the remarkable young people in the province who are going to create tomorrow's Saskatchewan," said Empey.

Metro and CBC will announce the winners between March 17 and 20, during which time the public will also have the opportunity to vote for the People's Choice award recipient.

For more information and to nominate an exceptional young person, head over to cbc.ca/sask and click the link for CBC Saskatchewan's Future 40. Stay tuned for next week, as Metro will catch up with a handful of the winners from last year's contest.

Meningitis risk to public remains low: Chief medical officer

The risk of contracting meningitis in Saskatchewan is low, a health official said on Thursday, while a Western Hockey League player remained in critical condition with the virus in Saskatoon.

"It's important to recognize that meningitis ... is extremely rare," Dr. Saqib Shahab, the province's chief medical health officer, told reporters in Regina.

"In Saskatchewan ... we see anywhere between two to 10 cases a year."

The renewed concerns about meningitis come as Tim Bozon, a star player with the Kootenay Ice, remains at Saskatoon's Royal University Hospital, where he was admitted Saturday.

The case has prompted public health officials to ensure that anyone whom Bozon, 19, recently had contact with receives appropriate medical treatment.

Management of the Blades has confirmed that the team's players and other personnel have been given antibiotics as a precaution.

While avoiding comment directly on Bozon's situation, Shahab stressed that the potentially fatal virus is spread only through close or direct contact with someone infected.

"Just being in the same room does not result in increased risk," he said.

Saskatchewan had seven confirmed cases of meningitis in 2011, before dropping to three cases in 2012 and the same number last year.

MARCO VIGLIOTTI/METRO IN REGINA

Aside from Bozon, there has been one confirmed case of meningitis in the province this year. A key factor in reducing the number of cases, according to Shahab, is the province's high immunization rate.

13 years later. Texas man can be tried as adult for childhood attack: Judge

A Texas man accused of dousing a boy with gasoline and setting him on fire when he was a teenager can be tried as an adult for murder after the victim died from his burns 13 years later, a judge ruled Thursday.

Authorities allege that Don Willburn Collins was 13 when he attacked Robert Middleton in 1998 on his eighth birthday near the younger boy's home northeast of Houston. Middleton was burned across 99 per cent of his body and endured years of physical therapy before he died in 2011 from skin cancer blamed on his burns.

Colleen Middleton, Robert's mother, said she was relieved the case would go to trial.

"When Robert died we were thinking maybe nothing will ever happen, maybe someone is just going to get away with what they did to him," she said.

"It's been a long road."

Shortly before he died, Middleton gave a videotaped deposition in which he accused Collins for the first time of sexually assaulting him two weeks before the attack. The sexual assault allegation prompted investigators to reopen the case.

Pretoria court. Pistorius prayed next to his shot girlfriend, says witness

As the girlfriend he shot in the head lay dead or dying in his home, a weeping, praying Oscar Pistorius knelt at her side and struggled in vain to help her breathe by holding two fingers in her clenched mouth, a witness testified Thursday at the double-amputee runner's murder trial.

"I shot her. I thought she was a burglar. I shot her," radiologist Johan Stipp, a neighbour, recalled Pistorius saying. The worried neighbour had entered Pistorius's home after hearing screams. By that time, the celebrated athlete had carried Reeva Steenkamp's bloodied body downstairs following the fatal nighttime shooting in his bathroom.

Pistorius is charged with premeditated murder after shooting Steenkamp three times out of four shots through the toilet door, with prosecutors trying to build a case that the Olympian intentionally killed Steenkamp after a loud argument.

Crimea sets vote to break from Ukraine

Russian power play. West answers Crimea's move with sanctions

Ukraine lurched toward breakup Thursday when lawmakers in Crimea unanimously declared they wanted to join Russia and would put the decision to voters in 10 days — and Russian lawmakers pushed a bill to facilitate a handover.

U.S. President Barack Obama condemned the moves and the West answered with the first real sanctions against Russia.

Speaking from the White House, Obama said any decisions on the future of Crimea, a pro-Russian area of Ukraine, must include the country's new government.

"The proposed referendum on the future of Crimea would violate the constitution and violate international law," Obama said. "We are well beyond the days when borders can be redrawn over the heads of democratic leaders."

Russian President Vladimir Putin's hand was almost certainly behind Thursday's dramatic developments, but it was not clear whether he is aiming for outright annexation, or simply strengthening his hand in talks with the West.

The White House moved to impose financial sanctions and travel restrictions on opponents of Ukraine's new government and the EU also announced limited punitive measures against Putin's government, including the suspension of trade and visa talks. Both Washington and the EU said they were discussing further sanctions.

Crimea's parliament rammed through what amounted to a declaration of independence from Ukraine, announcing it would let the Crimean people, 60 per cent of whom are ethnic Russian, decide whether they want to become part of their neighbour to the east. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Canada's stance

'Illegal' occupation

Crimea is under "illegal military occupation" and Canada will not recognize its forthcoming referendum on whether to join Russia, Prime Minister Stephen Harper said Thursday. Harper described Russia's invasion of Ukraine as an act of aggression and a clear violation of Ukraine's sovereignty and international law. THE CANADIAN PRESS

PM's ex-adviser under illegal lobbying probe

Serious allegations. Harper's former senior staffer faces new RCMP investigation

The RCMP is probing serious new allegations of illegal lobbying by a former senior adviser to Prime Minister Stephen Harper in connection with his work for a powerful business-funded energy advocacy group in Calgary.

The RCMP says that after Bruce Carson left the PMO he steadily worked federal Conservative contacts at the topmost levels to influence the development of a new national energy strategy and got handsomely paid for it, contrary to the criminal code and lobbying laws that ban lobbying within five years of holding a public office.

The revelations raise fresh and troubling questions about the access that Carson, a once disbarred lawyer, had to top officials in the Conservative government without anyone suggesting it might breach the Conservatives' own rules.

"None of them blew the whistle," said NDP ethics critic Charlie Angus. But Harper's parliamentary secretary shrugged off Opposition questions in the Commons Wednesday; first saying Carson is "a private citizen," then claiming the government did refer his activities to federal authorities.

"If this gentleman is found to have broken any laws, he should suffer under the full consequences of the law," said MP Paul Calandra.

In fact, documents show the federal lobbying commissioner initiated in November 2011 her own probe of Carson's questionable lobbying activities for the Canada School of Energy and Environment as well as a business-funded group calling itself the Energy Policy Institute of Canada or EPIC. Karen Shepherd finally referred the allegations to the RCMP in July 2012.

Connections

It's a sign of how well-connected Carson was that emails eyed by the RCMP tie him to many senior Conservative and Liberal contacts, including Harper's top public servant Privy Council clerk Wayne Wouters and former chief of staff Nigel Wright.

From 'high risk' to hopeful

International Women's Day. Lawrence Hill, author of The Book of Negroes, writes about his experience volunteering with girls at high risk for sexual assault and HIV exposure

LAWRENCE HILL
For Metro Canada

As International Women's Day approaches, I wonder how many Hillside High Schools exist in the world. But I would bet good money that there is no Hillside High School like the one I saw in Manzini, Swaziland.

In early February I had travelled to Swaziland as a volunteer to support the work of Crossroads International and its local development partner, the Swaziland Action Group Against Abuse (SWAGAA).

The girls greeted me by singing at the top of their lungs. There were nearly 100 girls crammed into a room with no open windows. Finally, a teacher held up her hand, brought the singing to a halt and asked what was on the girls' minds lately.

The answers came ringing out lucidly and unadorned: Was it appropriate for a high school girl to take up with a sugar daddy? What if they were exposed to HIV and died like their parents? What about teenage pregnancy?

Swaziland has the highest rate of HIV in the world, and young women are the hardest hit of all.

According to a study in 2008, 37 per cent of girls between 15 and 19 have HIV. In Swaziland, one girl in three will be sexually abused before age 18. The wave of sexual violence is so unrelenting that SWAGAA has created a network of "girls' empowerment clubs" to teach girls about their legal rights, issues of sexual reproductive health, and the need to oppose and report abuse.

Author Lawrence Hill with a girls' empowerment club in Swaziland. COURTESY CROSSROADS INTERNATIONAL

The day after I visited Hillside High School, I gave a creative writing workshop. Almost every girl in the group of 20 spoke or wrote about sexual assault. One girl began a writing exercise with these words: "Darkness has been my only mentor."

Crossroads International, a small Canadian NGO I have been supporting as a volunteer for 35 years, directs its development activities to girls and women in various African countries and in Bolivia.

In the case of Swaziland, the girls' empowerment clubs "are saving lives," says SWAGAA executive director Cebile Manzini-Henwood.

"There is urgency in the need to address sexual violence against young girls in my country, to teach them about practices that constitute gender-based violence and provide a safe space for them to report the violations and receive care, love and support."

On the eve of International Women's Day, let's remember girls and women around the world when we are donating from our own pockets and channeling Canadian-led development efforts.

CANADIAN WRITER LAWRENCE HILL FIRST TRAVELLED AS A CROSSROADS INTERNATIONAL VOLUNTEER TO NIGER IN 1979. HE IS AN HONORARY PATRON OF CROSSROADS INTERNATIONAL. El Niño predicted to make a comeback

Enrique Lagunas digs a trench to redirect water toward a street in Laguna Beach, Calif., after heavy rains from an El Niño storm hit Southern California in 1998. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

U.S. federal forecasters predict a warming of the central Pacific Ocean this year that will change weather worldwide.

The warming, called an El Niño, can mean an even hotter year coming up and billions of dollars in losses for food crops. Australia and South Africa should be dry while parts of South America become dry and parts become wet in an El Niño. Peru suffers the most, getting floods and poorer fishing.

But it could bring good news for some parts of the planet, leading to fewer Atlantic hurricanes and more rain next winter for drought-stricken California and southern U.S. states. It could also bring a milder winter for the frigid U.S. northern tier next year, meteorologists say.

The U.S.-based National Oceanic Atmospheric and Administration issued an official El Niño watch Thursday. An El Niño is a warming of the central Pacific once every few years, from a combination of wind and waves in the tropics. It shakes up climate around the world, changing rain and temperature patterns.

Mike Halpert, acting director of NOAA's Climate Prediction Center, says the El Niño warming should develop by this summer, but that there are no guarantees.

El Niño's flip side

The flip side of El Niño is called a La Niña, which has a general cooling effect.

- It has been much more frequent than El Niños lately, with five La Niñas and two small-to-moderate El Niños in the past nine years.

We Day is heading across the pond to its inaugural U.K. event — the first outside of North America — this Friday at Wembley Arena in London. It's expected 12,000 students (including 130 from Canada) and teachers from more than 380 schools will be in attendance ... along with Prince Harry and a number of other celebs.

We Day lands in the U.K. Inaugural event hopes to leave British youth with an infectious message of doing good

Each year, EF's Global Citizen Scholarship is awarded to 10 students across Canada who demonstrate a passion for global citizenship. And this year, the winners are heading to London and Berlin to participate in We Day U.K. and EF's Science & Innovation Summit in Berlin.

"What's unique about this event is that we have over 130 students from Canada joining with EF Tours to experience our first international We Day event and share their excitement with students in the U.K. who get to see it for the first time," said Craig Kielburger, international activist and co-founder of Free The Children.

Prerana Gambhir, a Grade 12 student with Fraser Heights Secondary in Surrey, B.C., is one of those 10 scholarship students. Gambhir, 17, is head of her school's global issues club and head delegate for the model UN.

Romeo Tello, a councillor with the City Youth Council of Toronto, is hyped to exchange ideas with other youth at We Day U.K. PHOTOS CONTRIBUTED

This year, the club is focused on women's empowerment; they're fundraising to support two girls' education in Tanzania and using any excess funds they raise to support micro-financing projects for women in developing countries.

As an immigrant to Canada, Gambhir says she realizes the importance of a free education. "I wanted to contribute and do my bit," she said.

In addition to fundraising through Free The Children's We Are Silent and We Scare Hunger campaigns, the global issues club has also created its own campaign called Five Days of Fire — a five-day competition that includes food and games.

Quoted

"What you want to do is help (recipients) create a self-sufficient lifestyle."

Prerana Gambhir, a grade 12 student who is passionate about sustainability issues

Prerana Gambhir is the head of her school's global issues club.

Gambhir feels strongly about the topic of sustainability. A lot of people feel they're doing their part just by raising money, she said, "but what you want to do is help (recipients) create a self-sufficient lifestyle."

With We Day U.K., it means getting that message across to an even larger audience.

Gambhir is excited to see education activist Malala Yousafzai at the event. "I've heard her speeches in the UN and her stories are truly moving," she said. She's also excited to see Evanna Lynch, who plays Luna Lovegood in the Harry Potter movies. "I'm a huge Harry Potter fan," she added.

Romeo Tello, a Grade 11 student with Monarch Park Collegiate in Toronto, is also on his way to London on scholarship. Tello, 16, is a councillor with the City Youth Council of Toronto, working with local reps on community issues and campaigns. His efforts have led, for example, to the extension of library hours in his community.

He also works with the school's Free the Children club, Minga. Last year, the club sent a group of students to India to help build a school; students are currently raising funds to build a school in Ecuador.

"I'm one of those more fortunate youth who got to see We Day grow into what it is now," said Tello. "I've been to one of the first We Days in Toronto and now I get to go to the first international one."

Like Gambhir, he's excited to see Yousafzai at We Day U.K.. But he's also hoping the trip will spark ideas through collaboration with like-minded youth — sort of like an informal forum of ideas.

"In my school we're all from the same neighbourhood — the discussion is pretty similar," said Tello. "These are nine other people from different areas of the country and our views will be different, our strategies will be different ... and hopefully some tangible strategies will come out of that."

We Day U.K. 101

- Co-chaired by Holly Branson and Lord Rumi Verjee, We Day U.K. features actress Jennifer Hudson, songstress Ellie Goulding artist Dizzee Rascal, and Malala Yousafzai, the international education activist and co-founder of the Malala Fund.
- Free The Children is one of the world's largest youth-driven charities. So far, it's helped to build more than 650 schools, providing education to 55,000 children, in eight developing countries.
- We Day is free to attend; schools earn their tickets by taking action in local and global communities.
- "We have students coming from all over England, Wales, Scotland, the Isle of Man, Northern Ireland and even the Republic of Ireland," said Craig Kielburger. "The young people in the U.K. are already incredibly creative and engaged in service actions and we can't wait to see the impact the first We Day event will have on them."

So did the chicken or egg get there first?

Hannah Owen says her experience with Free the Children spurred her on to start her own fundraising efforts. PHOTOS CONTRIBUTED

In 2010, Hannah Owen went to Rwanda with her dad, actor Clive Owen. She was 13 years old. They were there as guests of Aegis Trust, a British NGO that campaigns to prevent genocide.

It was a life-changing experience. "I had been opened up to the world of Africa ... but I never really had the experience of youth empowerment," she said. It was a trip to Kenya a year later with Me to We — to visit a Free The Children development — that helped her see how youth could make a difference.

"It had the most incredible impact on me," said Owen. "It completely changed my perspective on what is possible."

When she returned home, she started her own fundraising efforts. A conversation with friends turned into a chicken-and-egg race with her sister through the streets of London (each dressed in a costume) to see who would come first: the chicken or the egg. "It was completely bonkers," she said, adding that they managed to raise $5,900 that went toward education in Kenya. Over the past three years, Owen estimates she's helped to raise about $18,500 for various causes.

Hannah and her sister competed in a chicken and egg race through London to see who would finish first.

She's particularly excited to hear Malala Yousafzai speak at We Day U.K. Of course, she'll also be there to see her dad take the stage.

"He has pushed me and opened the doors to that world," she says of her dad.

As for We Day U.K., Owen believes it's going to have a big impact on British youth.

"It will be a spark for an amazing cloud of positivity around the U.K."

What were Coke execs on when they came up with this ad?

A Diet Coke ad is seen at 84th Street and First Avenue in New York City. While Coca Cola insists its new campaign is about life's big and small "You're on" moments, many are finding it hard to ignore the phrase's more colloquial meaning — namely, you're on drugs.

Worth a Bad Idea patch? Girl Scouts' Barbie deal draws ire

Advocates. Partnership with doll maker in the U.S. will transform little girls into 'walking ads'

America's top doll, Barbie, finds herself in controversy once again, this time over a business partnership between her manufacturer, Mattel, and the Girl Scouts.

On Thursday, two consumer advocacy groups often critical of corporate advertising tactics — the Campaign for a Commercial Free Childhood and the Center for a New American Dream — criticized Barbie as a flawed role model for little girls and launched a petition drive urging the Girl Scouts of the USA to end the partnership. The Girls Scouts said they would not do so.

The Girl Scouts' partnership with Mattel, announced last August, includes a Barbie-themed activity book, a website, and a Barbie participation patch — the first Girl Scout uniform patch with corporate sponsorship.

1 Celebrity selfie. It was bound to happen, and the world can thank Ellen DeGeneres for being the first to discover that if you take a picture with the world's biggest stars on live TV, and then challenge those viewers to break a retweet record, and it's free ... somebody's setting a new retweet record. #OscarSelfie

2 Mayor of late night. Jimmy Kimmel's most talked-about guest was Toronto's Rob Ford. Kimmel poked some fun and showed a video montage of the mayor's various missteps, read him a letter from an angry Torontonian, and grilled him until the mayor was literally sweating. Among Ford's top comments were "the apologies are over, I'm moving on," "I wasn't elected to be perfect," and the golden quote, "Actions speak louder than words." Oh, I'm done.

3 Pardon my French. Quebec Premier Pauline Marois, hoping to capitalize on recent polls putting her ahead of the Liberals, has called an election. Her goal is to achieve a majority government that will allow her to adopt her controversial Charter of Quebec Values. No hashtags were suitable for print.

4 Academy hustle. Fans of American Hustle were disappointed as the film's 10 nominations yielded zero wins. It never had a chance as host Ellen DeGeneres pointed out with my favourite line of the night: "Possibility number one, 12 Years A Slave wins best picture. Possibility number two, you're all racist."

5 Frosty tweets. Checking my Twitter account (@TheMetroList) while crossing the street, I stepped into a pothole that filled my boot with freezing water as a truck passed by splashing slush over the entire right side of my body, and the hashtag staring back at me was #SpringForward. Terrific. One less hour of bed rest.

6 The Voice. In this week's blind auditions, one mentor reigned supreme, collecting artist after great artist with nothing but his three previous wins and the promise of a good time. Of all the musical talent on the panel, that man was the quick-witted and charismatic Blake Shelton. #TeamBlake

7 Dancing With the Stars. ABC revealed their lineup for the upcoming season. Contestants include: Danica McKellar of The Wonder Years, Candace Cameron Bure of Full House, Drew Carey, and Diana Nyad who swam from Cuba to Key West last year. Hashtag is #DWTS because it's shorter than #DancingWithPeopleYouNeverHeardof,orForgot.

8 Puck daddy. The Vancouver Canucks traded goaltender Roberto Luongo to the Florida Panthers, tweeted his picture with the quote, "This caught me off guard, but I'm excited. I'm going home." then deleted it! No one knows why, but it spawned a barrage of creative tweets including one with Luongo's face on a 'Get out of jail free' card, referring to Vancouver's escape from the 35-year-old's 12-year contract that still has eight years to go.

The greatest taste experiences can feel like sweet music, and one of mankind's favourite treats can now provide a soundtrack. Q & A

Heightened senses

Metro spoke to designer Emilie Baltz

What considerations are there when matching a foodstuff to a music experience?
Our goal with performance food experiences is to study the relationship between the senses. It is challenging to say there is a 'should' involved in pairing sound with food. Anything can be paired with anything; the interesting piece is the resulting emotion that is created from the mixture. Food is such a subjective, complex experience that each person reacts differently.

What other foods do you think would work well with musical accompaniment?
We tried marzipan, dough, cocktails, sodas and even the rogue jar of peanut butter, which did not work. Seeing as music is a rhythmic experience, the foodstuffs that beg for repetitive actions — like licking — for their ingestion are perfectly suited.

SCENE 2

Synopsis

Based on characters from The Rocky and Bullwinkle Show, the movie stars the voice of Modern Family's Ty Burrell as Mr. Peabody, a beagle who is also the world's smartest being. Imagine Family Guy's Brian with less attitude but more PhDs. When his adopted son Sherman (Max Charles) bites schoolmate Penny (Ariel Winter) Peabody tries to smooth things by throwing a dinner for Penny's parents (Stephen Colbert and Leslie Mann). His party plan is almost derailed when Sherman and Penny hijack the WABAC device, a time machine that takes them to ancient Egypt and the Trojan War. Can Mr. Peabody rescue them before Penny's parents notice she's gone and the space-time continuum is irreparably destroyed? Steve Gow sits in for Mark Breslin this week.

RICHARD CROUSE AND MARK BRESLIN

Mr. Peabody & Sherman opens this weekend. CONTRIBUTED

Every dog has its day

Mr. Peabody & Sherman. Family flick still cuts clever for the adults in the theatre

Richard: Steve, Mr. Peabody & Sherman lacks the political bent of the original Jay Ward cartoon series, but it is loaded with references from literature, history and popular culture. It's the only kid's movie with an Oedipal joke and I can't imagine a Minion punning, "Marie Antoinette could have kept her head if she had issued an edict to distribute bread to the poor. But you can't have your cake and edict too." Which means it is stuffed with the spirit of Ward, which is a good thing, even if it does veer off path with a sentimental father and son subplot. What did you think?

Steve: I agree 100 per cent, Richard. In fact, by dipping its proverbial toe into that father-son subplot, the film dares to touch on what other family films like Finding Nemo or The Incredibles have done better. Still, the movie's meteoric pace never lingers too long on any facet of the film and its niche truly is the ceaseless nods to historical events. My favourite had to be a clever throwback to Spartacus.

RC: I know the history element sounds dangerously educational for a mainstream kid's flick, but the movie's trips back to ancient Egypt, the Trojan War and Leonardo Da Vinci's studio where they discover the secret of Mona Lisa's smile are really fun. They are made doubly so by great voice work. As the dim witted general Agamemnon, Patrick Warburton really stands out. He started the confident dumb guy routine on Seinfeld (as Elaine's on-and-off boyfriend Puddy) and uses it to hilarious effect here.

SG: And for those who remember the old Bullwinkle series, Ty Burrell does a pretty decent job voicing the movie's canine savant. Even more successful are the comedy's captivating visuals, especially the way director Rob Minkoff works the 3D to capture the measure of epic Trojan battles or travelling through the time-space continuum and not simply for eye-catching sight gags.

RC: The animation is top notch and like the best of Ward's work, Mr. Peabody & Sherman realizes that the material has to work on multi levels, the surface and the satirical. Like The Lego Movie, I think this movie will appeal to kids and adults.

SG: Again, I agree. The movie is a peppy, playful ride through history for all ages. In fact, it probably won't hurt either that most everyone in the audience will barely remember the old Bullwinkle cartoon.

- Wolverine. The great north is home to a pen-and-ink comic book history that is more than just pulp fiction. From Captain Canuck to Nelvana of the Northern Lights; Wolverine to Northguard, go online for an interactive map of Canadian superheroes.

- First comic. While the first edition of Nelvana of the Northern Lights cost 15 cents in the 1940s, you can read it online for free. Find out how Nelvana descended to earth after being called by Chief Tadjo to defeat the evil Commander Toroff.

- Fan art. When it came to how Nelvana would be illustrated, comic creator Adrian Dingle had some ideas of appropriate Arctic wear: a fur-trimmed mini-skirt, knee-high boots, matching gloves and headband, and a magical cape. While fans of the Inuit demi goddess aren't apt to wrap her in a Canada Goose jacket, they do have their own opinions about how Nelvana should look in 2014. Canada's own super hero. Captain Canuck, the boy scout with superhuman strength, has been reinvisioned for a new generation

life@metronews.ca

When it comes to updating a disco-era comic book character for an action-filled generation, you need to make some crucial changes.

"These days, the whole idea of a superhero in tights doesn't really exist," said Fadi Hakim. "You do need boots, you need armour. You need that sort of thing."

Hakim is one of the creative minds behind the revamped Captain Canuck, a red-and-white clad superhero who first leapt — he doesn't fly but he has superhuman strength — from the comic book pages in 1975.

The series was temporarily shelved in 1976, but was back in stores from 1979 to 1981. A second version of Canuck appeared in 1993, then a third in 2004, but these were both limited runs.

Fast forward a decade, where the highest rated films chronicle the ka-pows, whacks and prak-praks of the X-Men, Justice League and Dark Knight, and the time appeared right for Canuck to reemerge from the Canadian wilderness of forgotten superheroes.

A new five-part web series featuring Canuck wrapped up this week (more are planned), a live-action suit has been unveiled for public appearances, and the film rights have been bought by Minds Eye Entertainment. Fans are even creating their own art based on the characters in the series.

"He is a boy scout that is a little apologetic and tongue in cheek," said Hakim, president of Captain Canuck Inc. and owner of Toronto's Lakeview Restaurant, about this new incarnation.

You see those qualities in the first episode of the web series. Canuck weaves his way through a Canada Day crowd on Parliament Hill in a rush to defuse a bomb. "Sorry, miss," he says to a female fan before interrupting a Platinum Blonde concert to locate the explosive.

Anthology

Resurrecting Nelvana

Captain Canuck isn't the only Canadian superhero emerging from the protective hands of comic book collectors or the dog-eared, twine-tied stacks in musty basements.

Pre-dating Wonder Woman, Nelvana of the North first appeared in comics in 1941 and ran for 31 issues.

The tribal legends about the witch-like daughter of Koliak, King of the Northern Lights, inspired comic creator Adrian Dingle to pen a story about Canada's first female superhero.

CGA Comics' Hope Nicholson and her partner, Rachel Richey, launched a Kickstarter campaign last year to raise money to publish a complete anthology of all the Nelvana comics. Within five days they reached — and then doubled — their goal of $25,000. This spring, the 350-page book will be sent out to the project's crowdfunders.

"She is amazingly drawn, she is an Inuit super goddess, which is something that is really unusual," said Nicholson. "It is extremely Canadian. She actually, in one issues, arrives on a polar bear into battle, which is where Nelvana animation got its logo of a polar bear."

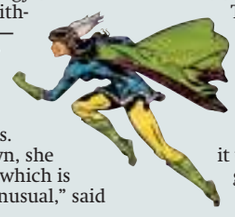
To create the anthology, they went to about 13 different private and public collections across Canada to scan each page. They managed to get all of them except for one which they could not find, said Nicholson, who also produced the Canadian superhero documentary Lost Heroes, currently airing on Super Channel. "It was in one private collector's collection but it was too damaged to scan, so I had to go to a reference library yesterday to get a microfiche scan." DEAN LISK



"Exploring Canadian identity is amazing," said Hakim. "It is very simple to play on that dry sense of humour that is almost clichéd, but we Canadians hold that dear, and it is important to us. That is what Captain Canuck is."

It was that representation of Canadian identity that first attracted Hakim to the character. He was six years old when he came across a Canuck comic at the Dixie Flea Market near Toronto Pearson International Airport. The '70s comic followed the adventures of Tom Evans, a secret agent living in a futuristic 1993, who gains supernatural powers after an encounter with extraterrestrials.

"I had my own money, 25 cents, and I bought Captain Canuck No. 1," he said. "I didn't remember reading the story but I do remember getting as many issues as I could. He was a patriotic character. He was vibrant. And then 'Canuck,' I didn't really know what 'Canuck' meant.

"I was born here, but am first generation, and, you know, singing O Canada in class, and the flag, and to see that in a comic book ... It puts things in perspective."

Hakim went from buying Canuck comics to introducing the character to a new generation after he met Richard Comely, the comic's creator. Hakim wanted to use the superhero's likeness on his restaurant's menu and approached Comely to see if he would allow it.

"I took a chance and emailed Richard and I couldn't believe it when he got back to me," said Hakim.

When the license for Captain Canuck became available, Hakim acquired the rights. One of the first people he brought on board to revamp the character was Paul Gardner.

"As a kid, I came from Scotland and I discovered the comic," said Gardner, creative director at Captain Canuck Inc. "I had Captain Britain over there, and they didn't have it here. Then, I saw Captain Canuck on a shelf, picked it up and fell in love with it. My way into Canada was sort of through the comic book."

The first question they asked themselves is what they would keep from the original series. "It went from being a fantasy — the big blue sky — to how do we do this practically so we don't have fans hate us," said Gardner. "It takes a village to raise a child; it's the same as taking a property like this."

While they changed the suit, and switched the gender of the character Blue Fox from male to female, they stuck to the spirit of Captain Canuck as a big boy scout with a conscious.

"We wanted to make this all inclusive, we wanted to make sure we stuck to our female audience and brought a bit more balance to the characters," said Gardner. "There is a big female audience."

"There are no big breasts, there is none of that nonsense," said Hakim. "So far, so great. We are growing it slowly, we are keeping it independent to the point where we have enough of a following we can take it to a bigger audiences."

Voicing the Captain

In the web series, Captain Canuck is voiced by Kristen Holden-Ried (Lost Girl, The Tudors), with Paul Amos (Lost Girl), Laura Vandervoort (Smallville) and Golden Globe nominee Tatiana Maslany (Orphan Black) also lending their voices to characters. The five episode series can be viewed at captaincanuck.com.

The man inside the leather

How do you dress Captain Canuck? Not in tights, that's for sure, says David Pea, president of UD Replicas. "There is a lot of 'been there done that' with spandex. They can be convincing and realistic but they can also look cheap," he says.

Pea's Toronto-based company makes motorcycle suit replicas of pop culture costumes, from the Dark Knight and Man of Steel to KISS jackets and Star Wars.

"What the studios do with millions of dollars and massive budgets to create their costumes on films we have to somehow reproduce out of leather for the public," he said.

Late last summer, Pea was approached to create a Captain Canuck suit. The costume was shown for the first time at Thursday's premiere of episode five of the animated series in Toronto.

"In the cartoon, Canuck has big shoulders, no waist and a little head, and they had to figure out how to get all that to work on a real person without it looking silly," says Pea. "It had to be done with human proportions." METRO

The mask

Taken from a life cast, a clay mold was later injected with red-and-white urethane rubber (the same stuff used for car bumpers and tires). Red earpieces were later attached and blue mesh lenses were placed in the eye sockets. "It looks bad-ass," says Pea, adding Canuck wears the mask over a white balaclava.

The effect

"It doesn't matter what you are built like when you put on our stuff," says Pea. "Even if our suits are too big on you, it naturally looks skin tight because of the muscle-wrapping design we have done. He is going to look like a tank. It is going to look like he has zero body fat."

The maple leafs

There is the large, main maple leaf on the chest and on the back, but maple leafs were also silk-screened on each of the shoulders.

The muscles

The Captain's shoulders, biceps, triceps, thighs and six-pack (more like eight-pack) were sculpted out of motorcycle-grade foam-body armour. The leather was then glued to the muscles and worked into the creases to make the suit look skin tight. It took more than a month to complete this phase.

The fabrics

The jackets and pants are made from a white heavy-grained Napa leather and two types of red suede. There is darker red suede for the details and a brighter red covered in silicone hexagon print. "It is a 3D-raised print and you can feel it with your finger when you run it across it. That was a nightmare to do, I am not going to lie," says Pea. "The philosophy of the character had to fit. He is a Canadian hero, so the fact it is made of something a little sturdier than spandex makes sense with our weather."

The boots

Also custom made, the knee-high boots are deep red with white trim. Snap buckles on the sides allow Canuck to pull them on. "These are the sexiest and coolest boots we have ever made and they scream Canada. There is no mistaking them for anyone but Captain Canuck." For the record, Canuck wears a size 11.

Canuck talk

Captain Canuck spared a few minutes from his crime-fighting crusade to answer a few need-to-know questions. Here is what red and white had to say:

Who is a Canadian hero?
Chris Hadfield sets an amazing example for all young Canadians — and he's one of the only men I know who can fly in space! A close second would be the True Patriot Love organization, which looks after all the men and women who risk their lives in military service.

Who is a zero?
There's a villain named Vex giving a succubus friend of mine a hard time recently. Reminds me I've got to return her Rush CDs...

What superhero would you like to go out with?
I don't have much of a personal life these days, but I did I hear Tessa Virtue's time has freed up recently.

Who is more patriotic, you or Captain America?
Being a patriot is not a contest for either of us. Curling, on the other hand... METRO

A brief history of comics

It's time to stop thinking 'comedians' when you hear the words 'Canada' and 'comics.' Here is a quick sampling of some of our illustrious illustrated past and present:

Johnny Canuck

Created as a political cartoon in the 1800s, this national personification was Canada's answer to Great Britain's John Bull and the U.S.'s Uncle Sam. Just like Barbie, Canuck was depicted as everything from a soldier to a "habitant" and a lumberjack — which is the basis for the Vancouver Canuck's logo.

Superman

We've all seen the "It will never fly" heritage moment; in 1933, Jerry Siegel and his Canadian cousin Joe Shuster created the building-leaping Man of Steel. Some of the original elements in the strip, like the name of the newspaper Clark Kent worked at, were inspired by Shuster's Toronto upbringing.

Golden Age of comics

When the War Exchange Conservation Act banned the import of luxury goods from the United States — yes, comics included — in the 1940s, a Golden Age of comics was started in Canada. Johnny Canuck was updated and new characters, like Nelvana of the Northern Lights, were introduced.

X-Men

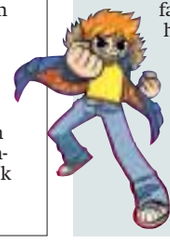
Introduced in 1963, the popular comic series about humans with mutant powers had storylines take place in Canada — including how Alberta-born Wolverine had his skeleton bonded with Adamantium. The film series was partially shot in Canada, with Canuck actors portraying some of the key characters. Among them are Halifax's Ellen Page as Kitty Pryde, Shawn Ashmore as Iceman, and Canadian-born Anna Paquin as Rogue.

Alpha Flight and Northstar

First appearing in a 1979 edition of Uncanny X-Men, Alpha Flight was an all-Canadian superhero team that tried to capture Wolverine and bring him back to Canada. The team is made up of French, English and First Nation characters, and was spun-off into its own series. One ember of Alpha Flight, Northstar — Montreal-born Jean-Paul Beaubier — was one of the first openly gay comic book characters, and even married his partner, Kyle Jinadu, in 2012.

Tom McFarlane

A Calgary native, McFarlane worked on a number of famous comics in the '80s and '90s before creating his own character, the anti-hero Spawn.



Graphic novels

In recent years, Canadian cartoonists like Seth (Palookaville), Chester Brown (Louis Riel, Paying for It) and Bryan Lee O'Malley (the Scott Pilgrim series) have received acclaim for their graphic novels. METRO

Gotta be room for Gus on Breaking Bad spin-off

Better Call Saul. Add Giancarlo Esposito to the list of Breaking Bad alumni itching to join the drama's upcoming prequel

Giancarlo Esposito says he believes there's room for his drug kingpin character Gustavo Fring in the hotly anticipated spin-off to Breaking Bad, which centres on the dealings of sleazy lawyer Saul Goodman before he hooks up with meth-maker Walter White.

"I don't know how much room but certainly it takes place pre-Walt so there is that space in that moment of time to have Gustavo realized in that show, it certainly is completely possible," Esposito said in a recent phone interview to promote an appearance at Toronto Comicon this weekend.

Speaking from the set of his current series, Revolution, in Austin, Tex., the veteran actor says he considers the ruthless Fring to be one of the best roles of his career, and credits Breaking Bad creator Vince Gilligan with the opportunity.

He would love for their TV partnership to continue.

"My people have talked to his people," Esposito says of Gilligan, who is listed as a co-creator on Better Call Saul.

"They're in the writers' room now so they have to formulate exactly what the show is but they've asked if there would be any interest if they were able to figure it out. I always would love to return to them because I think Vince is brilliant at what he does and I love the cast that he put together. To be back with the Breaking Bad family is a very specific and very wonderful way to work."

Quoted

"I would always love to return to them because I think Vince is brilliant at what he does and I love the cast that he put together."

Giancarlo Esposito, on getting the chance to work on Better Call Saul

The Emmy-winning Breaking Bad ended last year after five seasons.

Gilligan has said he'd welcome cameos from Breaking Bad actors in Better Call Saul, which will return Bob Odenkirk to the role of an Albuquerque attorney whose bread-and-butter is defending low-level criminals.

Breaking Bad co-star Aaron Paul, who played Walt's student-turned-sidekick, has said he's game for revisiting Jesse Pinkman and has been in talks about bringing his character on board.

But it isn't clear if there will be room for Breaking Bad star Bryan Cranston, whose science-teacher-turned-dealer Walter White relied on Saul's money-laundering schemes as his empire grew.

One character that has reportedly been confirmed is Saul's trusted private investigator/fixer Mike Ehrmantraut, played by Jonathan Banks. And that may be Gus' avenue into the show.

Fans of Breaking Bad know that Mike also worked as security chief at Los Pollos Hermanos, the chicken chain Gus used to launder his drug spoils, and was an enforcer in Gus's drug operation.

If Gus is ever brought into the show, Esposito says he's confident it would be a natural fit to the overall Breaking Bad story.

"These writers are really good and they have a great way to be able to truthfully bring someone back."

A banner day for Bieber: Police arrest sleeping fan and release urine-test vid

Police in suburban Atlanta arrested a woman they say was found sleeping in a bedroom at a home rented by Justin Bieber. Police say 23-year-old Qianying Zhao was found at the home Wednesday.

She told officers she had come to attend Bieber's birthday party and entered the unoccupied home through an unlocked door. But police say Bieber's party was earlier in the week at another location. She told officers she was Bieber's friend, but investigators believe she's one of millions of fans who follow him on Twitter. She faces a charge of criminal trespass.

Meanwhile, a Miami police video of Justin Bieber giving a urine sample for a drug test after his arrest on driving under the influence and other charges was released Thursday, with sensitive portions blacked out as ordered by a judge.

The clips show the 20-year-old singer standing behind a low partition to provide the sample. A black box is imposed over his lower half to conceal any glimpse of his genitalia.

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

You've Gotham be kidding — Spidey star kills Batkid honour?

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

Did Andrew Garfield refuse to present with Batkid at the Oscars?

If there is any truth to this rumour, Andrew Garfield may have pole vaulted past Justin Bieber and Shia LaBeouf to take the prize for most unlikable celebrity of the year. Shia just screams at Alec Baldwin, who can probably take it; Andrew, rumour has it, broke the heart of a little boy who survived cancer.

Garfield was scheduled to appear at the Oscars on Sunday with Batkid, the little boy with cancer for whom San Francisco transformed into Gotham for a day. The Spiderman star was to take part in an official ceremony to name Batkid an official superhero. However, Garfield apparently didn't like his lines and wanted to change them.

"Garfield refused to go by the script. He came up with his own lines. The producers felt that Garfield's (rewrites) were not appropriate. Garfield had a tantrum. He stormed off. Miles and his family, who were at the rehearsal, were devastated," a source told Page Six.

Producers decided to cut the Batkid segment from the show and sent Miles and his family to Disneyland instead — which, for a California kid, may not have been much of a thrill. I really hope Garfield's jerkishness is just a rumor, but even if he was a huge diva, it's not just him — this reflects terribly on everyone involved. Garfield, of course, comes off as a real jerk, but what would possess the Oscar producers to put such pressure on a small child in the first place?

Simon Cowell

Fatherhood brings out Cowell's soother side

While the first baby might have caught Simon Cowell somewhat off-guard, the "X Factor" boss is ready for more now that his son, Eric, has been born. "I was born to be a dad. I wouldn't rule out (more children)," he tells Extra. "I had a brother when I was younger, so I kind of think it's cool to have two or three." And the dynamic of having a newborn at home with girlfriend Lauren Silverman hasn't been exactly what he was expecting: "Lauren's actually been crying more than Eric, so I've had to put one of those pacifiers in her, which she likes," he jokes. "Has to be fed every three hours, otherwise she gets a little bit grumpy, and Eric's absolutely fine."

Lance's Olsen twin romance subject of tell-all

Lance Armstrong was reportedly advised to ditch Ashley Olsen when the pair briefly dated back in 2007, according to new Armstrong tell-all book Cycle of Lies. John Korioth, head of Armstrong's Livestrong Foundation, "warned the 36-year-old father of three that his May-December romance could damage his cancer work," Julie Macur writes in the book. "'Whoa, dude, bad idea,' Korioth said. 'You've got to put a stop to this right now.'" Armstrong apparently didn't appreciate the relationship advice. "She's 21," he reportedly responded. "F— you." But the relationship fizzled out after a few months anyway, with Armstrong moving on to Kate Hudson.

Wine warms up to soup

LIQUID ASSETS

Not every culinary creation was designed with wine in mind. Take soup for example.

The perennial meal starter has no one flavour profile. Hundreds of different recipes exist, so anointing a single wine to lord over them all is impossible.

Oh, and did I mention soup is mostly liquid? Wine doesn't play well with like-minded matter. Its idea of a perfect marriage is something solid that it can wrap its fruit, acid and, in the case of a red, tannins around.

That said, some soup styles are more wine friendly than others. Just look to the fundamentals of their foundation.

Those with texture are accommodating and today's veg-based recipe has weight and stability, which gives it a level of solidity wines find appealing. I like low acid reds with this veggie-palooza.

Try a bright New World Merlot, a juicy French Beaujolais or a plump New Zealand Pinot Noir like Villa Maria's 2012 Private Bin Pinot Noir ($19.95 - $24.99) — a silky blend of cherry and strawberry that checks all the right boxes. PRICES REFLECT RANGE ACROSS COUNTRY. With cold weather still gripping the nation, a steaming bowl of soup is sure to warm you up. Bestselling Australian chef Donna Hay shows us how, with this recipe from her cookbook Fast, Fresh, Simple.

2. Add the oil, onion, garlic and thyme and cook for 3 minutes or until soft.

3. Add the tomato, stock, carrot, zucchini and parsnip.

4. Cover and bring to the boil. Allow to simmer rapidly for 15 minutes or until the vegetables are tender.

5. To serve, ladle into bowls and top with salt, pepper and Parmesan. WATCH DONNA HAY FAST, FRESH, SIMPLE THURSDAYS STARTING AT 10 P.M. EST/PT ON GUSTO TV, CANADA'S NEW FOOD & LIFESTYLE CHANNEL. VISIT GUSTOTV.COM FOR FULL PROGRAM LINE-UP AND MORE GREAT RECIPE IDEAS.

Building a strong foundation

MICHELLE WILLIAMS
For Metro

Canada's theme for International Women's Day 2014 on Saturday is Strong Women, Strong Canada. So what could be more fitting than to focus on ways we can help guide our daughters along the path to becoming self-assured, resilient women?

Beth Malcolm, director of the Girls' Fund for the Canadian Women's Foundation, shares her advice for building strong and confident girls.

1 Talk to your daughter. It's important to maintain open dialogue. Discuss movies, music videos, current events, what's going on in her life, and listen to what she has to say. Hear her opinions, raise questions and encourage her to think critically, challenge stereotypes, value other peoples' opinions and form her own.

2 Allow her to take the lead. Give her opportunities to make choices about things like after-school and family activities to help practise making good, healthy decisions — just be sure to stay close by to keep things safe.

3 Validate her experiences. If she has challenges with friends or teachers, for example, avoid remarks like "it will all be fine tomorrow." Respect how she feels, bring in different perspectives and help her find solutions by talking things through.

4 Help her develop a strong sense of connection to others. Encourage her to join teams and clubs to build social connections. Being online shouldn't be the primary form of social interaction.

5 Encourage her to take safe risks. You instinctively want to protect, but girls do need to learn to be accountable for decisions and learn from their mistakes.

6 Stay connected to your child's school. There are many ways to be involved even if you can't volunteer in the classroom. Besides a good curriculum, your daughter's school should celebrate diversity, encourage the value of charity, and create a safe, caring environment.

7 Promote extracurricular activities. From music and art, to sports, public speaking and more, embrace the things your daughter is good at and encourage her to go outside her comfort zone, too.

8 Model self-confidence in your own behaviour. Your daughter shouldn't hear you criticizing things like your appearance or your weight. Value your own accomplishments and lead by example.

To mark International Women's Day on Saturday, focus on ways you can help guide your daughters along the path to becoming self-assured, resilient women. WARREN GOLDSWAIN/SHUTTERSTOCK

Inspiring change

This year's theme of International Women's Day highlights the valuable contributions of women entrepreneurs to the Canadian economy.

Metro asked Arlene Dickinson, one of this country's best known independent marketing communications experts, for inspiration and advice to pass on to the next generation of female entrepreneurs.

Dickinson offers these tips for young women to help inspire change for the world by first inspiring change for themselves.

- Know who you are and what core values you have that are non-negotiable, and don't be afraid to stand for those values against all public and personal resistance
- Know that there is no one "right way," but there is always a wrong way
- Surround yourself with people who give you good reason to pause and reflect on your opinion, and never be afraid to change your opinion because of what you have learned.
- Don't fear power or money for often they are in the hands of people who least deserve respect.
- Always fear people who don't speak the truth.
- If your gut says, "don't do it" then don't do it. It really is that simple. And if it says, "I'm scared but I feel I should try," then give it every ounce of effort you have and go for it.
- Do not be a pawn in someone else's game. It's always your move.
- Learn from others and listen to yourself.

Saluting trailblazers

KELLY PUTTER
For Metro

Is it your mom, sister or daughter you evoke when thinking about the great women in your life? Or perhaps you go to international trailblazers such as Hillary Clinton, Malala Yousafzai or Roberta Bondar?

Either way, the fact that you can easily call to mind influential females in all spheres shows how women have progressed in their quest for equality and freedom. As the world celebrates International Women's Day (IWD) Saturday, let's salute these strides and support those who continue to challenge the status quo.

Inspiring change is the theme of this year's IWD's campaign, which aims to honour women's accomplishments while reminding us that action is still needed to bring about true equality.

"The theme of inspiring change is powerful," said Leigh Naturkach, violence prevention program manager at the Canadian Women's Foundation, which works toward equality for women and girls. "It's meant to inspire us all to reflect on ourselves, our attitudes and our actions and also to reflect on and question long-held and outdated ways of thinking that are harmful."

Inspiring Change
Since the first International Women's Day in 1911, women in Saskatchewan and around the world have seen gains—but we still see inequality.
So as we celebrate on March 8th, let's renew our commitment to change—to moving forward to a time of equal rights, equal opportunity and progress for all.

Enroth outshines Canadian star's return

Jhonas Enroth stole the spotlight from Tampa Bay star Steven Stamkos.

Enroth made 43 saves to spoil the return of Stamkos and the Buffalo Sabres beat the Lightning 3-1 on Thursday night.

Stamkos had been sidelined since breaking his right shin Nov. 11 at Boston, causing him to miss 45 games. The centre received a partial standing ovation during pregame introductions, when it was announced that he is the new team captain.

"For the most part I felt good," said Stamkos, who played 21:03. "It's a step in the right direction. You can feel it a little out there as the play progresses, but I felt like I played a lot tonight and felt pretty good. As the game went on, my timing felt great with the puck."

Right wing Ryan Callahan, acquired Wednesday from the New York Rangers for former Tampa Bay captain Martin St. Louis, made his Lightning debut.

"As the game went on, I got more and more comfortable with who I was playing with," Callahan said. "More comfortable on the ice."

Tyler Myers, Marcus Foligno and Cody Hodgson scored for the Sabres. Enroth stopped a combined nine shots by Stamkos (five) and Callahan (four).

"When we get good goaltending, we have a chance to win," Buffalo interim coach Ted Nolan said. "We were very opportunistic on our chances. Jhonas was the backbone, for sure."

Tyler Johnson ended Enroth's shutout bid with a short-handed goal at 17:31 of the third.

"I'm pretty (upset) that I didn't get the shutout, but that's hockey, I guess," Enroth said. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Red Wings retire Lidstrom's No. 5

The Detroit Red Wings have retired Nicklas Lidstrom's No. 5 jersey.

Lidstrom was honoured Thursday night before Detroit hosted the Colorado Avalanche. A red banner — with his last name and number in white — was raised to the rafters to end the pregame ceremony.

The storied franchise previously retired six jerseys: Gordie Howe's No. 9, Steve Yzerman's No. 19, Ted Lindsay's No. 7, Terry Sawchuk's No. 1, Alex Delvecchio's No. 10 and Sid Abel's No. 12.

Lidstrom retired after the 2011-12 season — his 20th with the Red Wings. He won four Stanley Cups and seven Norris Trophies as the NHL's best defenceman. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rain wreaks havoc at Doral

Tiger Woods only made it through 10 holes Thursday — this time because of the weather, not his back.

The opening round of the Cadillac Championship was stopped for more than two hours because of thunderstorms. When the round was suspended by darkness, Woods had played 10 holes. He was at 2-over par.

Harris English finished with a 3-under 69 for a share of the lead with Jason Dufner, Hunter Mahan, Francesco Molinari and Patrick Reed, who all had to return Friday morning to complete the first round.

Wiggins won't play in Kansas anymore

Andrew Wiggins.
GETTY IMAGES FILE

Andrew Wiggins remembers sitting in the bleachers of Allen Fieldhouse long after the final whistle, watching as the crowd showered the departing Kansas players with love.

It may not have been that exact moment that the nation's No. 1 recruit decided he would play his only season of college basketball with the Jayhawks. But the outpouring of support on senior night certainly played a role in his decision, one that he doesn't regret for a moment.

"It went too quick," Wiggins said late Wednesday after his own version of senior night, tucked away in a small room not far from those stands where he sat a year ago.

"I wish I had more time to stay here and do my thing, just be here with the team and the coaches and all these wonderful fans," Wiggins said, thoughtfully. "That's one of the reasons I committed here. I came here on senior night and the fans were so loyal."

Wiggins arrived at Kansas with nearly unattainable expectations, yet he's lived up to just about all of them. He's averaging 16 points and nearly six rebounds, numbers that may seem modest at first glance but are even more impressive considering the way he shares the ball.

To be perfectly clear, Wiggins has never led anybody on. He made it clear from the outset that he would head to the NBA next season, and after having one of the best freshman campaigns in Kansas history, he's certain to be a lottery pick, if not the No. 1 overall choice.

Coin hasn't dropped

"I don't think it's hit me yet. That's how quick everything went by."
